Shipping by the Cape.

[illegible], Jan. 2.—The outlook for the shipping for the coming year is brighter than for a long time past, as many of those vessels now under contract with railroad companies are about to renew their shipments via Cape Horn, as in fact several have already. Of the total number of vessels cleared last year 4 were coal laden, [illegible] with general cargo, which is estimated at [illegible] the same as last year, or about [illegible] tons. Of the total number of departures [illegible] vessels were from this port, 12 from Philadelphia, 5 from Boston and 4 from [illegible]. The tonnage on berth to cape [illegible], including vessels registering, aggregates [illegible] tons. Of this number it is [illegible] will be dispatched to San Francisco and 2 to Portland. At the wharves there was not much doing, except [illegible] vessels which cleared Wednesday, [illegible] Columbus, which are now loading. The tonnage continues to accumulate and business in all directions is [illegible] vessels in all of the California [illegible] or two will probably be taken [illegible] coming week. [illegible] interest law went into effect to-day, [illegible] rate of interest in this state is [illegible] per cent. Opinions in regard to the [illegible] widely. Some lawyers contend [illegible] repeals the old laws which contain penalties for usury, and others contend [illegible] old penalties for usury still remain. There is likely to be litigation in [illegible] unless the legislature passes explanatory amendments. If the old penalties [illegible] national and state banks are liable to a forfeiture of twice the amount of the interest in case of usury, while the penalties [illegible] other infractions of the law are [illegible] fine, six months' imprisonment, and [illegible] principal and interest. Col W P Adair, second chief of the Cherokee nation, with several other members of the Cherokee delegation, and ex-Congressman Phillipps, of Kansas, opposed Boudinot's claim. The discussion became so warm that the argument was adjourned ten days by the commissioner. Boudinot and Adair, however, continued the controversy in a heated manner outside of the commissioner's room. Finally each struck at the other with canes and then clinched and fell to the floor. They were then separated by the department watchman and before serious injury was inflicted. The fight caused much excitement in the interior department

The Feeling at Washington Encouraging

WASHINGTON Jan 2—The violent talk as generally prevalent a few days ago in regard to the situation in Maine has greatly subsided and it is now almost universally believed that some solution of the difficulties will be reached without resort to forcible measures on either side. It is known that several democratic senators have telegraphed from this city to Gov Garcelon earnestly advising him to agree to ex Senator Morrill's proposal for an arbitrament of the matter by the state supreme court, and it is understood that a number of republican senators, including Edmunds, Anthony and Burnside, have advised the Maine republicans not to take any steps which might look like appealing to force, but in default of Garcelon's agreeing to refer the case to the supreme court, to submit to their wrongs under protest and endeavor to induce the legislature to carry out the spirit of the law under the letter which Garcelon claims to have acted. One of the most prominent republican senators now in Washington expresses the opinion that the Garcelon legislature will assemble without molestation on the 6th of January, that the republicans will then demand that immediate steps be taken to correct their alleged wrongs before the election is had for governor, and that this demand will at least to some extent if not wholly, be complied with. It is still expected, however, by most representatives in this city that in the event of non compliance with such a demand the Maine republicans will organize a legislature of their own and proceed to elect Davis governor. It is also now remarked, that in the case this be done it would be very easy to throw the whole moral power of the national administration into the scale in favor of Davis, by a simple congratulatory telegram, to be sent by Rutherford B Hayes in acknowledgement of telegraphic announcement from Davis that the legislature had on such day duly elected him governor. This course, it is argued would avoid all question of right of a formal recognition of one of the two governments by the president, but would exert practically the same effect as a favorable official response to a call for the national assistance to suppress domestic insurrection.

COLORADO INDIANS.

Representative Belford's Interview with Secretary Schurz in Regard to the Utes—Dispatches from Gen. Hatch, Etc.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN]

Postponed.

WASHINGTON, Jan 2—At a cabinet meeting this afternoon there was some discussion in regard to the Ute difficulty, but in view of the obscurity of recent dispatches on this subject, it was concluded to postpone its further consideration

Belford and the Utes.

Representative Belford called at the interior department to-day to obtain an abstract of the official correspondence on the Ute Indian question, but Secretary Schurz thought it would be better to await its transmission to congress. The conversation then drifted to the present relations of the Indians to the government and to the treaty. Belford called Schurz's attention to a case that occurred in 1824. It appears that certain Indians of the Chippewa tribe had murdered four citizens of Michigan. After committing the murder they fled into the wilderness. The government thereupon informed the tribe that unless as a tribe they delivered up the murderers their treaty rights would be regarded as forfeited. The secretary remarked that he was afraid matters had become badly complicated, that the recent dispatches from Hatch seemed to indicate that some days ago certain of the White river Utes, including Douglas, the worst of all, had been delivered to Hatch; that after receiving them Hatch had allowed them to go on a hunt to Grand river and it would now take a month to find them. If this be true the secretary remarked the White river tribes might claim that they acceded to the demands of the government and could not longer be held censurable. Belford asked if Persun, Johnson and the men who ravished the women had been surrendered to Hatch. The secretary said that with the exception of Douglas no prominent chief was mentioned. Hatch telegraphs that he would be compelled to take his horses and wagons out of the country, that there was no feed for the horses and that if necessary he would go back to Los Pinos. Schurz telegraphed Hatch that Gen Sherman, the secretary of war, President Hayes and himself were all of the opinion that measures looking to procrastination would not be hurtful to the government as it is impossible to commence actual hostilities for two or three months. Dispatches from Hatch are so enigmatical that Schurz has been compelled to telegraph for specific information. All that is known of Hatch is that on the 1st he was at Chief's ranch. Belford says that judging from various dispatches read to him the whole thing is such a muddle that nobody can understand the situation, but he can't believe that Hatch ever had these culprits in his custody although his dispatches [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] the appropriation of the [illegible]. It seems more probable that a few prisoners were offered and [illegible] [illegible] to take any unless all were [illegible]

Dispatches from Hatch.

W[illegible] —Secretary Schurz this afternoon received a telegram from Gen Hatch dated Lake City to-day. It reports that he has brought several Indian chiefs from the reservation to Lake City with him; that they are held by him for the purpose of preventing any demonstration by the young men of the tribe; that he desires to take them to the military camp at Garland, and if deemed advisable to send one of them back to see if the surrender cannot be [illegible]. He expresses the hope that this may yet be accomplished. The dispatch also refers to the subject of rations [illegible] to clear up the uncertainty in his former dispatches to this department.

Secretary Schurz immediately replied to the dispatch by telegraph, requesting information upon the following points: Whether the White river Utes offered for surrender are still in Ouray's power or whether they have been released. Also what [illegible] are with General Hatch and of what bands. Also whether there is any prospect of Gen. Hatch now getting into his possession Chief Douglass and the son of Douglass and other culprits of importance who were [illegible] offered for surrender. His proposition to take the Indians now with him to Camp Garland is approved and he expresses [illegible] complete. The surrender may [illegible] be accomplished. He is requested to say what in his opinion can be done by the direction of Washington authorities to aid him. In conclusion Secretary Schurz [illegible] that he will send to General Hatch [illegible] read to the Indian delegation and [illegible] to the Indians at their reservation immediately after his answer to the foregoing [illegible] shall have been received.

Capital Savings Bank

SAN FRANCISCO Jan 3—President Carey of the Capital Savings Bank of Sacramento, speaking on behalf of the directors says that the real cause of closing of the bank was the belief of the directors that the savings bank cannot be successfully carried on under the new constitution and directors are tired of working for dividends for depositors only. The assets of the bank they state are fully equal to all liabilities and the bank is perfectly solvent but this being the close of dividend term was a good time to wind up and they so resolved. They say they will pay off dollar for dollar, and can realize quickly on their securities as most of them are out at high rates of interest, and parties are ready to change to new loans of less rates. The bank commissioners examined the bank on Monday and found it solvent and the directors thought they could close their banking business in the face of that report without discredit

Meeting of the Legislature.

SACRAMENTO, Jan 3—There is little new to report this morning. Gov Perkins' message is finished. It is understood that if anything it is shorter than usual and that it will take strong grounds upon the necessity of carrying out the new constitution in letter and spirit. Arrangements are making for holding a conference of republicans this evening with a view of organizing if possible on Monday. The hold over senator business has almost entirely dropped out of sight; none of them are at present here with the intention of contending their alleged rights upon receiving assurance that no effort will be made on their behalf. No objection will be raised by the republican senators to Lieu Gov Johnson calling the senate to order. The assembly will be called to order by the oldest member present but no one seems to have determined finally who that individual will be

THE OREGONIAN reaches this point in regular order and this makes us all glad for we all know when we get the OREGONIAN that we will get the news. We have lately established a school district and are now making a movement for a post office. A blacksmith is much needed here to do our work, also a trader in groceries and dry goods would do a good business. Both would be received with great delight by all the people in this region of country. We have a healthy climate and everything grows that is necessary for the sustenance of man. It has been snowing here for two or three days—snow about eight inches deep. Cold no wind

BONDED STEAMSHIPS

PORT TOWNSEND Dec 31 18[illegible]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Your whole community and your state at large is directly interested in having bonded the ocean steamships which ply between San Francisco and Portland?

There are [illegible] ways in which ships can be bonded. First for carrying unappraised merchandise [illegible] known as [illegible] immediate transportation [illegible] which are to be appraised at the port of delivery. Many of the railway lines are thus bonded, but this is not needed for the steamship lines and commerce of your port for some time to come. When you have direct communication by rail with New York then unappraised merchandise will find its way to your port and not before

The second method is, by bonding for the carrying of foreign merchandise which has been appraised at the first port of entry or at San Francisco, and which has not paid duties at any port. This is the bond which should be given by the steamships, and without delay as I shall proceed to show

The bonded warehouse system has been established by the United States for the convenience both of the importer and the consumer. Entries of merchandise differ but we will for the present consider two kinds: 1st, where goods are entered for immediate consumption; 2d where they are entered in bond. In the first instance when the goods are entered at the custom house the duties become immediately due and payable, depending for final adjustment on the liquidation of the entry. Our merchants have found this course to work a hardship in the various channels of trade, the rate of interest on money being high and the duties large; hence originated the manner of making an entry of foreign merchandise in bond where by the goods are placed in fire proof warehouses under customs locks, and in charge of U S storekeepers, bonds given to secure the duties, and a moderate rate is established for storage. As the wants of the community require withdrawal entries are made, the goods removed from the warehouse and entries are noted for immediate consumption. This system has been found by experience to work well, both for the government and the importer

You have in Portland an excellent bonded warehouse. It is fire-proof and eligibly located for business purposes. It will supply the wants of your port for several years. Why is it almost empty,—hardly half full at any season of the year? The answer is because you cannot bring appraised foreign merchandise from San Francisco to Portland save in bonded ships. This is the law, and it operates to the great disadvantage of Portland. All the foreign merchandise which is consumed in Oregon is either imported direct in the district of the Willamette, or pays duties at some eastern port or at San Francisco

No large commercial city like yours should for a moment consent to occupy this secondary position. The department is ready to afford the steamship owners every facility in the bonding of their ships, and it only rests for the latter to begin the new year by affording increased facilities for commerce. Your collector of customs will gladly issue such instructions as will not cause any delay in the unloading of the ships, and but little additional responsibility is assumed by the common carrier

Not long since a gentleman prominently identified with one of your leading transportation companies made extensive purchases in Europe of statuary and other rare and costly articles, all of which, instead of coming to Portland and being entered at your custom house and paying duties at his home, had to be entered and examined at San Francisco, repacked, etc. All of which is vexatious and of course increases the chances of breakage and damage to the importation

Again, Take the importation of grain sacks alone. These cannot be brought to Portland from San Francisco, duty unpaid, in any save bonded ships. Hence the practice is to make heavy shipments of this class of merchandise coastwise from San Francisco, duty paid. Whereas the most prudent and merchant-like commercial course, would be to bring to Portland the bags and put them in your bonded warehouses duty unpaid and withdraw them and pay the duty, when a sale of bags is made to the consumer. I merely give this alone as an example for the length of this article will not permit me to enter into estimated loss of duties, by examining any specific classifications of foreign merchandise.

I estimate the loss of duties to your custom house on this class of importations alone, at $20 000 yearly, and perhaps more, and the total increase of collections will, in my opinion, in one year, readily aggregate the sum of $50,000

It should be the duty of every citizen of your commercial metropolis to swell your customs collections by every laudable means in their power, for here, let me say, the customs revenue of Portland has been steadily falling off since the Hawaiian treaty went into operation. The aggregate receipts from all sources in the district of the Willamette for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1879, was only the sum of $108,708 71.

A tabulated statement has been furnished me at my request for departmental information by Hon John Kelly, your collector of the estimated loss of duties to the United States at your port, resultant upon the so called reciprocity treaty. The period embraced is from October, 1876, the time when the treaty went into operation, up to and including September, 1879. From this I find the loss to the government is the remarkable sum of $535,551 09, or almost as much as your custom house, postoffice and United States court building cost. In addition to this there was received at your port during the same time 11 138 pounds of pulu, always free, valued at $1219, and cocoanuts worth $34

The practical operation of this ruinous trade policy has been blighting to our domestic sugar interests, and the worst feature of the whole thing is that it has several years to run. We have already lost $5,000,000, and by the time of the expiration of the treaty, provided the stipulated notice is given in 1883 the loss to the United States will exceed $12 000 000 or $16 000 000, which as a statistician remarks, "is as much as we paid for the whole territory of Louisiana, and much more than we paid for Alaska." The purchase price of the latter was $7 290,000, and was a bargain. Since 1870 the annual gross revenue from the lease of the Seal islands has been $317,500, whilst the whole cost of governing or misgoverning the territory is only $62 000 per annum. Alaska has paid back to the United States over $3,000 000, or almost one half the purchase money

A great many of our leading statesmen were grossly deceived in the much boasted advantages to be derived by the U S from the negotiation of this treaty. It was a mistake to say the least and too late have we found out that we have been sold out and hoodwinked

The Columbia river both upper and lower needs annual appropriations to make it available and safe as a great highway of commerce. Judge then when a committee of congress looks at your yearly collections [illegible] find you a small dwarfed [illegible] port instead of collecting as you should [illegible] 000 every year and increasing from year to year as your commerce both foreign and domestic surely is

I observe your board of trade has taken the initiative in this matter. This is well and every importer, merchant and person doing business in your city should constitute himself a committee of one to call upon the chief officers of these steamship companies, some of whom I have reason to believe have New York and visit Portland, and examine into the condition of the trade.

The ships should be bonded and with [illegible] day

Yours truly

MONDAY MORNING JAN [illegible] 18[illegible]

SILENCE TOO UNBROKEN

It is probably not true that the selection of Senator Don Cameron to preside over the national republican committee is a sign that Grant will be nominated at Chicago but that some people so regard it is true. It is also probably not true that Gen. Grant has signified any definite intention on his part to accept the presidency of the transcontinental canal scheme but Gen Ammen has given the country to believe that the great general will accept. The New York Tribune thinks the significant point in the case is that the ex president's most intimate friends being active and confident in both these movements on his behalf have placed him in the compromising position of appearing to occupy two mutually incompatible positions. General Grant may not be responsible for this, but he is the only one who can correct it. He has pursued a dignified silence thus far while the whole country has been guessing at his intentions. The time however has now come when speech would be dignified rather than silence. It may be said that he cannot accept or refuse a nomination until it is tendered him. But though the nomination is yet uncertain the candidacy for the nomination has gone very far, and with or without his consent General Grant has been made one of the chief competitors. The Tribune says "In a case of this kind silence will not only be interpreted as an acceptance, but silence is an acceptance." He cannot honorably allow his friends to make extraordinary efforts for him and, at the last moment, in case of something better offering throw them overboard with a protest that they acted without his authority. On the other hand, if he has resolved to accept the republican nomination it is unfortunate that his name is so freely used in connection with the canal enterprise. Admiral Ammen has stated quite assuringly if not positively, that General Grant would take the presidency of the canal scheme and his silence certainly may be also as well taken as a confirmation of Ammen's statements.

It is related of an intimate friend of the general's, that while the Grant family were abroad he crossed the ocean for the express purpose of asking the ex president whether he meant to accept a renomination but when he reached the reticent presence his courage failed him and he came home again without broaching the subject. It is a pity some bolder spirit does not take the risk of representing to our returned hero the awkwardness of the situation in which he has been placed by the injudicious enthusiasm of his canal friends or his political friends, we cannot tell which. There ought to be no ambiguity about the position of so great a man.

THE MORMONS AND POLYGAMY.

The Mormons are becoming alarmed for the safety of their pet institution—polygamy. Delegate Cannon of Utah, who represents the polygamous population of his territory but not the Gentile, as non-Mormons are designated, was hurriedly called to the city of saints during the recess of congress to consult with the leaders in regard to the proposed measures for the suppression of the vicious practice of plural marriage. What new scheme has been set in operation is not known only that Delegate Cannon is to intercede with the democrats in congress to stay off the work of prosecutions and if possible obtain state government for Utah. Utah is said to be democratic in sentiment and with the secret machinery of the Mormon church could be kept in the ranks of that party for a long time to come, and hence it will offer a great inducement to the Bourbons to attempt to invest her with the privileges of state sovereignty. With a state government in Utah under the present regime polygamy is an assured institution, and the church would feel no further anxiety in regard to her perpetuation. The saints, however, fearing a miscarriage of their plans, have been looking toward Mexico as a place of refuge and safety for their church and her tenets, and have dispatched an agent to that country to ask permission to locate there. The minister of foreign affairs has given them an early reply and informed them that there are abundant vacant lands in the northern part of of Mexico, and that they are welcome to them at a moderate price, but with commendable promptness warns them that if they bring their accursed polygamy with them they will surely be punished.

The authorities have time and again threatened to enforce the law of 1862 in regard to polygamy, and after continued threats and seventeen years of procrastination succeeded in getting a decision from the supreme court as to the constitutionality of the law. There is nothing to prevent the government from pushing to the bitter end and the enforcement of the law, and the question arises, will it be done and will the institution be wiped out of existence as it should have been years ago, or will it all end with threats and further procrastination? It is time that something was done. Every sense of decency demands that the government cease puerile dallying, and wipe the disgraceful business from the country.

A New York paper predicts an event very much more to be desired than a good many others which might happen. It thinks Blaine, Conkling and Sherman and a good many others almost equally conspicuous, have been too prominently and unintermittently in the public eye to get any nearer to the presidency than Moses did to the promised land. Hayes, who had nearly dropped out of sight, beat all of them at Cincinnati and Washburne, as administrator cum testamento annexo of the political assets of the silent man—now making so much noise—there is strong reason to believe, will win the nomination of the next republican national convention. He was out of the country a good while and he has buried himself so thoroughly since he came back from France and kept so resolutely quiet that he will have all the freshness of a new man. Here is your republican dark horse. Behind Grant stands Washburne.

The young man who was taken to Washington recently to write up a reputation for the Oregon delegation in congress does well enough when he confines himself to the business for which he was charitably transplanted from the position of a poorly paid scribbler of the Standard office to a sinecure clerkship on a senate committee, that business being to eulogize his masters, Grover, Slater and Whiteaker. But when he attempts to reach beyond this and treat of general politics or the conduct of other men in political life he shows an ignorance of the subjects and a disregard of truth which will [illegible] raise [illegible] very greatly in the es[illegible] the [illegible] which [illegible] are painted [illegible] will cause those who [illegible] knowledge of the subjects treated [illegible] fulness in treating them as essential to a newspaper correspondent to set T[illegible] S[illegible] as a very [illegible] or a very silly sort of person.

It is thought that the scruples which some men have against receiving stolen goods may yet give Garcelon and his co-conspirators in Maine some trouble. Two of the counted in legislators have declined to accept that which the governor wrongfully attempted to give and will not present their certificates nor sit in the assembly—an act which, while there [illegible] probable [illegible] a suffi[illegible] be [illegible] those who have received certificates of election [illegible] for which they were defeated [illegible] follow the example [illegible] the republicans [illegible] belongs to them. The majority in the legislature [illegible] knew his [illegible] of them will stand by him [illegible] unless justice is accomplished and then [illegible] effected by law or force.

The [illegible] agitate the country not so much the country in general as Colorado in particular. It appears that the Colorado delegation is determined to have the Utes removed from that state and with this end in view the people of Colorado have used every endeavor to present the worst side of the question. The dispatches deploring the safety of the commission have been gotten up for this purpose and no doubt the subject will be agitated until the country is forced into war with the Utes. There is no doubt the Utes deserve punishment but this continuous stirring up is certainly to be deplored.

The Standard complains that it is not carried in the letter mail from Roseburg to Coos Bay, though the readers on the bay don't seem to grumble any at missing it. The carrier ought, however to put the Standards in his vest pocket and carry them over the mountains as it would not be much trouble to him and might save the publisher from doing himself harm.

THE PENDLETON HOMICIDE

There appears to be some disagreement in regard to the killing of Harry Strobe by J H Turner, and being unable to say which is the correct account of the affair, THE OREGONIAN gives both sides of the story. The following from the Weston Leader:

Weston was thrown into consternation on Wednesday morning by the tidings that a man by the name of Harry Strobe had been killed at Pendleton by Gen J H Turner. So many conflicting rumors were current that it is impossible to sift through the exaggeration and arrive at the facts of the case. We give the generally accepted details without vouching for their accuracy. Mr W I Black formerly of this office, and the deceased had an altercation, resulting in blows. Gen Turner requested Mr Strobe to tell why he had fought with Mr Black. He replied because Black had drawn a pistol on him. Turner then said, that if Black had drawn a pistol he deserved castigation. Strobe then replied that Black had drawn a pistol and got threshed for it. "And" said he "perhaps you would like a little of it yourself." Turner said no. Finally however it developed into a quarrel, Turner throwing him twice to the floor after which he left the room. Returning for his hat he was again approached by Strobe, who in the meantime had proclaimed his intention of killing Turner. Mr Strobe approaching Turner, struck him in the face when Turner drawing a knife struck him close to the shoulder blade, piercing the heart and killing him almost instantly. A coroner's jury being summoned and fifteen witnesses examined the verdict simply declared "that Harry Strobe had come to his death from a knife in the hands of J H Turner," without implication of guilt or exoneration. How much of our data is correct, we know not hence refrain from making any comment. In any instance it is a melancholy episode in the records of our county.

The following is the Pendleton Independent's account:

On Tuesday evening last our town was thrown into a state of excitement by the killing of Harry Strobe, with a knife, by J H Turner. It appears from the testimony taken before the coroner's jury on Wednesday, that Strobe and a friend were sitting at supper in the Bon Ton Hotel, and J H Turner and two friends were also at supper at an opposite table, when some one commenced throwing lumps of sugar etc., at the former. Strobe became excited, and after requesting them to stop he threw a cruet at the party, and Mr Sanford, the proprietor, appeared on the scene and put Strobe and his friend out. A short time after this Turner and Strobe met in the Bon Ton saloon, when angry words ensued which were followed by blows, and Turner being too much for Strobe, held him on the ground and begged of him to behave himself, when they parted and Mr Turner left the house, leaving his hat behind him. In about ten minutes Mr Turner came back to the saloon where Strobe was standing, and when Turner came into the room Strobe brushed up against him, Turner then told him to leave him alone, as he did not want anything to do with him. Strobe then threw a glass of whisky into his face, upon which a fight ensued, and the two locked together, after which Turner drew a knife and struck Strobe first on the shoulder then below the shoulder blade, the knife penetrating the heart entering about eight inches. After this deceased did not speak, but died in a few minutes.

Alaska's Wonderful Glaciers — Prof [illegible] Muir, the celebrated geologist and naturalist, returned on the steamer California from Alaska, where he has spent several months in geological researches During his stay he paid particular attention to the glaciers. Of these he saw more than three times as many as are contained in all Switzerland, and then he did not see one half that are to be found in our new possessions. Those in Switzerland as soon as they descend within 3800 feet of the sea level melt, while those at Cross Sound, about 200 miles above Fort Wrangel, descend into the salt water and discharge in the form of icebergs Many of the glaciers descend to the timber line before melting. Prof. Muir has accumulated a store of wonderful knowledge concerning the glacial formations of the world and his contributions to Harper's and Scribner's Magazines have earned for him a national reputation second only to that of Agassiz An effort is being made to have Prof Muir deliver at least one, and, if possible a series of lectures before his departure for San Francisco

NOTES FROM THE DALLES

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN

THE DALLES, Jan 1 1880

Yesterday the thermometer here was 40 above zero Snow was melting fast on the hills Chinook winds blew and the streets were sloppy and muddy [illegible] hear all sorts of rumors that the O S N Co intend to try sending a boat from here to Portland next Monday Many anticipate that navigation will resume in two weeks and if it didn't freeze so awful hard at nights that hope might be tangible

This has been a merry lively town for the past few weeks Strangers fervently hope it may continue so as otherwise the town would be rather dull during the freeze up

SOCIAL TEMPERANCE AND RELIGIOUS ITEMS

A very pleasant party was held recently at the residence of Mr McFarland Music games and dancing were the attractive features

A very select supper and lunch was given last Saturday evening by the partners of the Bachelors Bureau

The Masons had a grand celebration supper the other night The hours were crowded with merriment, joy and social pastimes

Parlor concerts at a prominent hotel are a leading feature in musical circles They are unusually felicitous and agreeably entertaining

Sunday afternoon all the religious schools were crowded The singing was excellent. At night there was a splendid concert at the Congregational church The choristers were rendered in perfect time The little folks acted admirably and all the varied and instructive exercises highly delighted the large audience

Monday night the Blue Ribbon Club had a meeting that jolly good old man Father Harmon presiding Mrs Simmons secretary and Mr Young skillfully managing the organ There were some good recitations reading, solos and speeches Short addresses were made by several in the audience and were eagerly listened to Mrs Simmons read the society paper Temperance Mirror It was filled with choice selections spirited pleasant editorials and withal was the best thing on the programme Father Harmon gave some funny songs the pledge was signed by many and the exceedingly pleasant meeting closed

Tuesday night there was a social dancing party given as a surprise to a leading belle of the town Last night witnessed the grandest social event this season a masquerade ball at the Umatilla House Almost everybody went and spectators were plenty It was a gay scene Some of the dresses were costly, and they glimmered and glinted like fairies in the gaslight Others were comic in appearance, others had grotesque apparel but all mingled together happily dancing and courting the goddess of pleasure until a new year dawned

To night the Methodist church gave a concert in Chapman's Hall "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," "Dreaming of Home and Mother" and a few other pieces were rendered in a creditable manner All the musicians succeeded well and the concert proved both pleasant and remunerative—pleasant to the visitors and remunerative to the church The house was crowded almost to suffocation as the hall is not very commodious An instrumental concert is announced for to morrow night and other parties and entertainments are talked of among them being a trip to Celilo to skate if the weather is favorable

BLUE MOUNTAIN UNIVERSITY

Among the improvements in Grand Ronde valley we would call the special attention of parents to the interest now being manifested in the Blue Mountain university at La Grande This institution passed under the direction of Rev G F Ackerman at the commencement of the winter term Prof Ackerman has secured the pledge of eight annual prizes for proficiency in various departments of the academic course These will probably be supplemented by others and it is the evident determination of President Ackerman and Agent Grannis to place the Blue Mountain university on a par with older and more financially favored educational institutions in the eastern states

The prizes are as follows Messrs Sommer & Baer two prizes for general scholarship viz First $15 each year to that student ranking above primary and who takes full work who shall have made the highest average standing for the year second $10 each year on similar conditions to that student who shall have made next the highest average standing for the year

Messrs Snodgrass & Miller two prizes for oratory viz first $15 each year to that graduate from the preparatory department who shall write and pronounce the best English oration matter and manner to be considered second $10 each year to that graduate from the preparatory department who shall write and pronounce the second best English oration matter and manner being considered

No student will be permitted to contest for these prizes who has not at the end of the winter term made an average standing of eighty per cent All whose standing average eighty or above will be permitted to write and hand in orations signed with some nom de plume and out of the whole number the faculty will choose nine These nine the writers will deliver at a public contest some time during commencement exercises in June and a disinterested committee of five will award the prizes,

Daniel Chaplin two prizes for excellence in Greek viz first $15 each year to that student who shall have made the highest average standing for the year in Greek second $10 each year to that student who shall have made the second best average standing for the year in Greek

M Sterling Esq of Island City two prizes, higher mathematics viz first $15 each year to student having best standing for year second $10 each year for second best

DEATH AT THE WHEEL.

The above heading has a startling effect on the nervous and well should the ladies be posted as to its meaning It implies nothing more nor less than the sewing machine The many machines now in use have had their telling effect in killing off women by the thousand from the heavy, tiresome working of poorly constructed machines But, a change has come over all of this by the introduction of the now justly celebrated New Wilson of which John B Garrison is agent, at 140 Front street, Portland One trial is convincing proof of their superiority over all others

WOODWARD, McQUISTON & BRADSHAW

Have determined to clear out the remainder of their stock of

WINTER AND FANCY DRY GOODS

At an unprecedented sacrifice, previous to taking stock. While other merchants, after business hours, were enjoying the comforts of home or sleeping on the pillows of down, we were hard at work up to the wee small hours of morning reducing and re-marking our entire stock. We wish to impress on the inhabitants of Portland and surrounding country that we have not made reductions in the way usually adopted by merchants, as marking down a few well known classes of goods, such as Muslins, Sheetings, Canton Flannels, Calicoes, etc., in order to throw out a bait to the unwary and impress them with the idea that their whole stock is reduced in like manner, but will in reality make more than what they lose on the baits. Not so with us. We have taken Department after Department, piece after piece, and made the pen of reduction sweep through them as chaff before the wind. Remember,

This Sale will Only Last for Twenty Days,

As at the end of that time we take stock, and we must have room for our immense Spring stock, which will commence to arrive immediately after.

WESTERN WASHINGTON.

A Glance at the Resources of this Section--Agricultural, Lumber and Coal Interests--Their History and Development.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

SEATTLE, W. T., Jan 2, 1880.

Appropos to the present "exit of the pale descending year," may be deemed a retrospective glance at the past and a periscope of the future. This debouche affords a vantage ground from which one is naturally led to take a survey of the field. The sweep of our vision on this occasion, however, must necessarily be narrowed down to that portion of our common heritage known as Western Washington, lying between the Cascade mountains on the east, the Pacific ocean on the west, the Columbia river on the south, and British Columbia on the north, having an area of about 30,000 square miles, the principal portion of which is heavily timbered with magnificent forests of fir, pine and cedar. In Puget Sound it has a great maritime and commercial artery, and one of the finest bodies of water in the world, being midway between the Pacific ocean and the Cascade mountains. This body of water covers an area of 2000 square miles, has a coast line of 1600 miles, and is 120 miles in length. Every mile is navigable for ships of the largest model, there being neither rocks nor shoals from one end to the other.

WESTERN WASHINGTON

Is divided into three great basins—the Columbia, Puget Sound and Chehalis basins. The soils of these several sections are much varied in character, portions being gravelly, while along the numerous water courses are rich alluvial lands. These lands yield forty bushels of wheat to the acre, and average thirty; oats yield forty bushels and barley forty-five, rising to a maximum of eighty bushels. Fruit does exceedingly well, with the exception of peaches, grapes, etc., while berries grow in great profusion, many of the varieties being unknown in the eastern states. The average yield of potatoes is 250 bushels to the acre, and onions 200. As high as 800 bushels of the former and 700 of the latter, however, have been raised to the acre. Hops are cultivated on many of the river bottoms, and do exceedingly well. The yield for 1879, as nearly as can be determined, is 500 tons, bringing on the average 25 cents per pound. As to other products, your correspondent is unable to obtain reliable data. One section, however, known as the Swinomish county, an area of many thousands of acres of marsh land, from which the first shipment of grain was made in 1875, has produced the past year 10,000 tons of grain.

CLIMATE.

The average temperature of the last winter was 39°, the summer 63°, making a mean difference of only 24°. Occasionally the maximum temperature of a few days in summer reaches 90°.

Though of much present and great future importance to this section, our agricultural interests (which have been gradually developing since 1845, when Col. M. T. Simmons made the first American settlement on Puget Sound, at Tumwater) are of but secondary import as compared with the

which is really paramount to all others. From the time J. S. McCallister constructed the first sawmill on Puget Sound, at Nesqually, in Thurston county, in 1851—a small gate or sash mill, driven by water power, up to-day and down to-morrow—with a capacity for cutting from 500 to 1000 feet of lumber per day, improvements in sawmill machinery and the manufacture of lumber here have been constant, until now we have mills producing as high as 90,000 feet of lumber per day. The first steam saw mill constructed on the Sound, the wonder of the surrounding country, was built in this city by H. L. Yesler, in 1853, with a capacity for cutting from 10,000 to 15,000 feet of lumber per diem. But the representative mills of to-day are as much greater improvement over this one than the first steam mill was over the old "water power." The logs are now drawn up a slip from the water into the mill upon an endless chain armed with grappling dogs, and as they one by one fall upon the bed are seized by steel teeth of live rolls, which at the motion of brakes toss backward and forward, like playthings, the largest, leaving them just right for the cross cut saws which governed by brakes dart upward from their hiding places and in a jiffy the log is ready for the rotaries. From the rotary the lumber, save square timber, passes to the gang edgers, drawn along by live rolls. Beyond the edgers are stationed the markers, one to each saw, who cull and mark the lumber, from whom it is hurried along the live rolls to the sluices, down which it slides to the wharf, where one or two vessels are constantly loading. Not the least interesting feature of these mills are their admirable arrangements of endless chains for carrying off the bark, tops, butts, slabs, edgings, sawdust, etc.

THE FIRST SHIPMENT,

Of timber of any kind from Puget sound was made in 1851 by Lafayette Balch, consisting of a cargo of piles, for which he paid eight cents per running foot here, delivered alongside the vessel, the piles selling in San Francisco for $1 per running foot. The first shipment of sawed timber was made the same year from Nesqually to San Francisco, the lumber selling in that market for $50 per thousand. From this insignificant beginning a great industry, aggregating many thousands of dollars annually, has sprung up. If the past may be accepted as an index to the future still more surprising results are to be attained. Our saw mills at present have a capacity per day as follows

Port Gamble Mills	120,000
Seabeck Mill	65,000
Port Discovery	60,000
Port Madison	90,000
Port Blakely	90,000
Tacoma	80,000
Milton	80,000
Utsalady	75,000
New Tacoma	12,000
Stetson & Post's	12,000
Colman's	12,000
Total	606,000

The mill at Port Ludlow, which has been shut down for some two years, is being thoroughly overhauled and fitted up with all the modern improvements. When completed its capacity will probably be larger than that of any mill on the Sound. While the capacity of the Colman mill in this city will be increased in the spring from 12,000 to 30,000 per diem.

So far as your correspondent is able to ascertain the following is the product of the Puget Sound mills for 1879, excepting, of course, a large number of small mills run by water power and otherwise, engaged in sawing lumber for the home market:

Port Discovery	10,000,000
Utsalady	8,000,000
Milton	1,500,000
Tacoma	15,000,000
New Tacoma	3,000,000
Colman's	2,500,000
Stetson & Post's	500,000
Blakely	30,000,000
Gamble	36,000,000
Seabeck	10,000,000
Madison	8,000,000
Total	120,500,000

The mills have not been run to near their full capacity, on account of the unusual depression that has affected the lumber market for the past year. Prospects, however, for the coming year are good, and a much larger product will be the consequence. Logging operations also, which have been almost entirely suspended since last June, will be generally resumed in the spring. It is estimated by those best informed, that from a surplus of 45,000,000 feet of logs remaining in the water unsold last spring, there are not now more than 15,000,000. Next to lumber comes the,

COAL INTERESTS.

The first shipment of a few hundred tons of coal from this territory was made in 1853, from the Bellingham Bay mine. The product of this mine was increased some 18 years later to 50,000 tons annual export. The coal however was of an inferior quality, and the expense of opening the mine as compared with other mines since opened, was very great, and the mine was subsequently abandoned entirely. Coal was first discovered here at Bellingham bay in 1852, by Captain Wm. Pattle, while looking for timber for the Hudson Bay Company. He immediately located a claim of 160 acres, and two companions with him at the same time preempted the same amount of land. These men subsequently leased their claims to San Francisco parties, who relinquished the enterprise after taking out 150 tons of coal. What was known as the Bellingham Bay Mine was discovered in the same locality in 1863 by the blowing down of a tree. The original locators afterward sold out the mine to parties in San Francisco for $18,000. The Seattle mine was discovered in 1865 by R. H. Lewis, who subsequently sold out his interest in the mine for $30,000. The first shipment of coal was made to San Francisco in 1870, on the bark Moneyick, consisting of some 405 tons. For the year 1874 the product of the mine reached 50,000 tons, while from July 1, 1878, to July 1, 1879 it reached 155,900 tons. During the present year, ending December 31, 1879, 137,207 tons of coal have been produced.

In 1874 the Renton mine was opened, producing during 1875 6, 25,000 tons of coal annually. The Talbot mine was opened during the following year, and produced for the year 1876, 18,000 tons of coal. The Renton and Talbot mines were subsequently shut down but through arrangements recently made between the two companies, the mines have again started up, and will make their first shipment of coal, since the resumption of operations, some time during the coming month.

The coal of all these mines is of the lignite variety, well adapted to steam and domestic purposes.

During the past year two additional coal companies have been organized, viz: The Carbon river and Cumberland, the former for operating a very extensive and recently discovered mine of semi-anthracite and bituminous coal, on Carbon river, in Pierce county, and the latter for operating a similar mine on the Skagit river.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO SCIENCE.

A few months ago, Senator Grover, at the suggestion and request of Judge Deady, applied to the Smithsonian Institute for a copy of the works known as Contributions to Science, for the use of the Portland Library Association. The works, probably the most useful of the kind ever written, and intended only for the larger libraries throughout the country were kindly furnished to Senator Grover and forwarded here. The board of directors of the Portland Library at a recent meeting passed suitable resolutions of thanks, and ordered them transmitted to the Senator and the Smithsonian Institute. The following are the

KING OF THE BLOOD

THE MOST THOROUGH PURIFIER OF THE BLOOD YET DISCOVERED.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the Worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.

It invigorates the Liver.

It regulates the Bowels.

It strengthens the Stomach.

It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

ITS NAME IS ITS BEST DESCRIPTION, as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health, and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 40 to 50 doses. Sold by Dealers in medicine.
